FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1901.

Don't ask sensible Americans to accept harmony with a hatchet, because the request is impossible of fulfillment.

Citizens of Hawaii exerting their energies to discredit the Hawaiians are merely wasting their time, except it be they are seeking their own destruction.

By a curious misprint a contemporary credited Coon with having several tons of opium in possession. If this were true Coon should change his name to Cuckoo.

Renewed activity in the Philippines serves to sort of strengthen the bond of sympathy Americans have for British brethren. Both nations are struggling to make good citizens of foolish citizens who refuse to be good.

With the Neill season, Hogan and the forthcoming meeting of the "thirty-seven" to hear Hankey's report—and pay the deficit—Honolulu has quite enough amusement in sight to keep it happy till the holiday season.

Governor Dole refuses to promise an extra session of the Legislature though every department in his administration is clamoring for it. It would be interesting to know what can possibly be gained by the present blockade.

Just as matters begin to get a little dull the transition habes corpus comes to the front, active and energetic as a new born babe. The men who created the transition period little realized that they were producing such magnificent material for legal perpetual motion.

The Rapid Transit extensions are opening up possibilities for attractive suburban homes that are highly gratifying to the people of small means. The day is not far distant when the resident portion of the city will center in the valleys and higher elevations where it belongs.

Is the Chamber of Commerce now to be called on to furnish money for the repair of the Pacific Mail wharf? The experience the business men had with the Quarantine wharf in obtaining return for their advances is not such as to warrant marked enthusiasm for putting up money on work that should be done by the government.

Mr. Shepard, the Tammany candidate for Mayor of New York has been on so many sides of the political fence as to warrant the supposition that at some time in his career he lived in Hawaii during the days when men took oaths to support governments apparently for no other reason than to secure the amusement of breaking them.

Mackay is going ahead with his Pacific cable plan in a tornado style that may well cause panic in the ranks of his enemies and assure actual cable construction within a period numbered in months. With the contract for the wire placed it stands to reason Mackay is not spending his money that the cable may decorate someone's backyard.

The $200,000,000 required to build the Nicaragua canal looks like a pretty big sum until it is remembered that the United States can secure the amount and as much more merely by favorable action of Congress and it would not be a drop in the bucket of our great national resources. This is a billion dollar country and the limit of its credit is not even in sight.

The position taken by John Lane in refusing to accept J. W. Jones position on the Territorial committee and reserving his opinion as to other acts of the committee is thoroughly in keeping with good politics and judgment and the maintenance of personal self-respect. Mr. Lane is one of the most earnest and consistent Republican workers in the party and his defeat at the hands of men he might reasonably expect to be his friends does not require extensive comment among those having any regard for political or personal loyalty.

It is none too early to renew the work carried on by various commissions in drafting a municipal program for these islands. In less than a year we will be in the midst of another election, and the people will not allow city and county government to be put off for another two years. The plea of lack of time will have no force or effect. If the thoughtful people of the Territory desire a municipal organization appropriate to our condition they will not wait till the Legislature is about to meet before discussing the question.

HARMONY OVER INJUSTICE.

The Republican party of Hawaii requires harmony but it must be the harmony that results from justice and equal representation.

The harmony talk made by the Thurston organ this morning is the plea for harmony with an illegally constituted executive committee, harmony when the Hawaiian-Americans are not only not given fair representation on the committee but given no member whatever on the executive body of a party in which they hold a large proportion of the votes that must be cast at the elections.

Thurston and Dole's efforts to eliminate the Hawaiian from the voting population of the Territory gives strength to the conclusion that the illegally constituted committee is one of which they approve for the particular reason that it has no Hawaiian representation. Whether the conclusion is correct or not, no power on earth is capable of overcoming the impression, if not conviction, that exists, and while it exists as it must continue to do until the mistake is rectified, harmony that makes for confidence in the honorable intentions of the Republican party in Hawaii is impossible.

The action of the Republican Territorial committee that added two members arbitrarily to the executive committee's membership was not legal nor justified by the conditions presented for the committee's consideration. It makes no difference who proposed the plan. It was wrong. It assumes that the Territorial committee is a law unto itself, which it is not by right nor was it ever intended to be. If a committee can add to its membership it can also rule members off the committee, and can overrule the laws laid down by the Territorial convention whenever it so chooses. Such arbitrary action secures chaos and only chaos. There is not a single detail in such a course that serves to produce harmony, enlist support or instill any degree of confidence in party operations.

But as before pointed out in this paper, the Territorial committee went further in its destruction of party harmony. In selecting these two additional members it set aside all consideration of the District committees, placing all the voting power in the hands of the Fourth District and leaving the Fifth with but one representative on the executive committee.

Finally, a Hawaiian-American was thrown ruthlessly down and the Republican Executive committee of today exists without a single representative Hawaiian among its members from the island of Oahu.

While such a condition obtains in any party organization in this Territory harmony is impossible. There is no reason why harmony should be possible under this state of affairs because it is unjust. It is wrong and the party cannot possibly succeed while carrying such an incubus of rank injustice.

It is a matter of notable record in these islands, especially well known to Hawaiians, that Lorrin A. Thurston pleads for harmony when he has accomplished his ends and not till then, and when that plea for harmony is made the public is asked to overlook the gross irregularities he may have found necessary to use in carrying out his purposes. This is now the situation presented to the Republicans of Oahu. They are asked to overlook the repudiation of the Territorial convention, the repudiation of the Fifth District and the repudiation of the Hawaiian Republicans. They will not do it. Make no mistake, they will not do it. And men who have any broad gauged regard for the advancement of Republican principles in these islands will not attempt to thrust such a proposition down their throats.

The present Territorial Republican committee is making precedents for future committees. It is fully within the range of possibilities that Hawaiian Republicans may gain control of the Republican committee at future primaries and conventions. By this precedent established by this committee it will be within the power of the Hawaiians to create an executive committee with but one representative from the Fourth District and no representative of the so-called foreign element. Does Mr. Thurston seek to make the people believe he would plead for harmony under such conditions? He would not. He knows it and the people know it.

The position taken by the Territorial committee at the present time is that of bolting the rules and regulations laid down by the Republican Territorial convention. The rank and file of the Republican party will not endorse or quiescently accept such action.

Knowing the Law

Editor Evening Bulletin:—It is astounding that our excellent Scotch townsman, McCants Stewart, bemoans universal lack of knowledge of the law amongst followers of his profession, when one of the greatest of British legal lights has said: "Did I claim knowledge of the statutes I should argue myself no lawyer. Did I confess ignorance of the law I should prove myself unfit for the calling."

LAYMAN.

Tutor (to inattentive pupils, who is looking out of the window)—Now, George, when you've quite done with the landscape, we will proceed, if you please, with our geometry lesson.

George (resignedly)—All right, sir, but I think there must be something wrong about this "prop" you told me to learn.

Tutor—Which proposition was it?

George (absently, and still at the window)—On the same base, and on the same side of it, there cannot be two triangles having their adjacent sides equal.

Tutor—Well, and what law have you discovered in that proposition? Come here to the blackboard and explain your difficulty.

George—If you'd come here to the window, sir, you'd see what I mean.

Tutor (complying)—My dear George, there is nothing to be seen, except what appears to be rather a comely nursery maid seated upon the knees of a soldier.

George (triumphantly)—That's just it, sir. They're on the same bench and on the same side of it, so old Euclid's jolly well wrong.—The King.

Eleanora Duse, the famous Italian actress, is peculiarly nervous. When she is not at rehearsals or acting she spends her time in perfect rest. She receives no one except old friends, and only a few of these. She has a lady companion, who arranges her journeys and engages rooms in the hotels. This lady sees that Duse's rooms are at the back of the hotel, and that, if possible, they look out on a garden. She cannot bear street sounds and sights.

INCREASED TEA DRINKING.

"The increased consumption of tea is one of the interesting phases of modern commercial life in the South," said a drummer for a New Orleans house, "and you would be surprised at the vast change which has taken place in this respect. The fact is that during the past few years the changes in the tea business have amounted to a revolution. I have just returned from a trip on the road, and I touched some of the more remote places in Texas and Mississippi, and while I have been out before in the same territory, I was surprised at the increased number of tea drinkers."

"Up to a few years ago in the more remote sections of the country tea was used almost exclusively in the sickroom. Tea had to be bought in the country from the druggist. The man who dealt in general merchandise rarely thought of selling tea, unless he had a medicine counter in his store. Tea was something flimsy, to be given to the convalescing patient, along with crackers, tasteless broth and things of that sort."

"This is not the case now. Tea is bought in rather large quantities by country merchants, and the country folk use it for other than sickroom purposes. It is extensively used throughout the country."

"There is still more interesting a fact in connection with the growth of the tea trade. Negroes are now great tea consumers. You would be surprised at the amount of tea consumed by this element of the population. Using tea is a new thing with the negro element, but since they have gotten into the tea-drinking habit they have vastly increased the consumption of the product. Yes, they have about quit using sassafras roots for tea-making purposes, and this rather primitive drink is now used for its medicinal properties. It has exchanged places with the other tea."

"These are some of the reasons for the increased consumption of tea. There are, of course, many other special and general causes for the new demand, and altogether the changes form a rather interesting subject so far as modern commerce is concerned."

ST. LOUIS' BIG CONTRACT.

Contracts for the building and grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, at St. Louis, Mo., will be let about December 1, 1901. The contracts to be let will involve an expenditure of about $11,000,000, of which $7,000,000 will be for buildings and $4,000,000 for the grounds. The first $1,000,000 will be for the four main buildings, which will cost about $1,000,000. The site to be occupied is the unfinished part of Forest Park, and this site has been surveyed and the lines of the buildings and avenues staked out. The designs for the separate buildings have been to the individual members of the Commission of Architects, will be submitted in scale drawings by the middle of October, and the working drawings of the main buildings to be let first will be ready by November 1. The lettings will be advertised for about three weeks in the leading technical journals throughout the world. There will be no geographical restriction on bidders. The main stipulation will be that the buildings be ready for occupancy at a date sufficiently far ahead of April 30, 1904, the date fixed for the opening of the exposition, to allow exhibitors time to prepare their displays for the opening.—Engineering News.

ERASING TYPEWRITER SHIELD.

It is a common practice in many business offices to keep a carbon copy of all letters for filing with the letter to which the original replied, this being considered by some a more convenient and neat method than copying the original in a book, as it does away with the blurring of the letter by dampening it. The only objection to the filling method is that in making erasures from the letter the carbon copy becomes smeared with the carbon under pressure from the eraser. A simple and convenient shield has been designed by Virginia I. Copeland of Washington, D. C., for separating the letter sheet from the carbon while erasures are being made. The device consists of a folded sheet of celluloid or metal, the under portion being plain, while the face section is perforated with longitudinal slots to allow free movement of the eraser on the enclosed sheet of paper. In practice the letter is slipped between the folds of the shield to separate the carbon sheet, when the shield may rest on the platen to steady the paper while the erasure is being made.

NEW WORK AT JOHNS HOPKINS.

Baltimore.—Johns Hopkins University is about to start a new department to be known as the Department of the Philippines. It will have to do in a broad and liberal way with the education of those students who wish to familiarize themselves with the dialect, patois and customs of the new possessions, and so complete has been the preparation for this new branch of educational work at the university that it will be possible for a student to become so thoroughly conversant with the life in the islands that, once there, there will be little for him to learn as far as the language, methods and manners of the country are concerned. The new work at the university will be under the immediate supervision of Prof. Paul Haupt. The lecture in the new course will begin during the coming week, and associated with Prof. Haupt and under his direction will be F. R. Blake, an authority in matters pertaining to the islands.

Afternoon tea, according to Miss Edmundson, president of the Irish Women's Temperance Union, is exercising a powerful influence to save British women of social position from the drink habit. Miss Edmundson is quoted as saying: "I fear the poorer classes of Irish women drink more than formerly. Grocers' licenses are chiefly responsible for this evil. Another cause is the crowding of poor families in tenements, where drunkenness springs from sociableness. The upper classes of women, since they have universally adopted tea as the fashionable beverage, are gradually escaping from the clutches of the appetite for fiery liquors. I think that drunkenness among the women of Ireland is about the same as that in England and Scotland, but much greater than that in America."
